Running time analyses

Often algorithms are described recursively or using divide-and-conquer. We will show how to analyze the running times by:

- writing the running time as a recurrence relation
- solving the running time
- proving the running time correct using induction