What do you do when a problem is NP-hard?

Suppose you reduce your problem to a graph theoretic problem that a problem is NP-hard.

What does this mean?

What should you do?