Why did we need two base cases?

Recall that we checked base cases $n = 1$ and $n = 2$.

We needed this to be sure that we covered every possible $n \in \mathbb{Z}^+$.

Suppose we only verified that $P(1)$ is true.

Then how would we be able to derive that $P(2)$ is true?