

Example of Direct Proof

Theorem: Every odd integer is the difference of two perfect squares. (In other words, \forall odd integers x , $\exists y, z$ integers such that $x = y^2 - z^2$.)

Note: $\forall x$ is the same as “for all x ” and $\exists x$ is the same as “there exists an x ”.