

Clicker Question

You have a certain mass of He gas in a rigid steel container. You add the same mass of Ne gas to this container at constant temperature. Which of the following best describes what happens?

- a) The final pressure is twice the initial pressure.
- b) The final pressure is greater than the initial pressure, but it is less than twice as large.
- c) The final pressure in the container is more than twice the initial pressure.