

Internet Itself can be Considered a Service

Is the Internet itself a service?

One can certainly view it that way.

What is the service?

Try to deliver a packet of bits (information) to a specified address (IP address).

What are the clients?

Any computer that wants to communicate.

What are the server(s)?

Routers (and Internet Service Providers, and ...)

