Frequency-Domain vs. State-Space

- 90% of industrial controllers are designed using frequency-domain methods (PID is a popular architecture)
- 90% of current research in systems and control is in the state-space framework

To be able to talk to control engineers and follow progress in the field, we need to know both methods and understand the connections between them.