Logical vs. numerical errors

Floating point is somewhat error-prone

Seems easy, but the behavioral differences can be subtle

When adding numbers of different magnitudes

Number of rectangles = N

```
For (x = 0, sum = 0; N > x; x++) {
    sum += myfunc (x/N) / (double)N;
}
```