

Supplement: Superposition and Chemical Bonding

Chemical bonds are stronger when the bonding electrons in each atom lie on the side near the other atom. This happens as a result of superposition. A state with definite (l,m) is symmetrical, but a superposition does not have to be. The example here is called an “sp hybrid”:

